London, UK - Airmakeup Inc. has recently announced that its revolutionary flawless approach to makeup application is now offered at the Hudson County Schools of Technology (HCST).

On October 21, 2010 students begin learning the air and makeup technique as a course in the HCST's cosmetology department. The courses will be overseen by beauty expert, Catherine Scarengille, who is also founder of Airmakeup.

Scarengille has written the first hands on learning workbook to use air and makeup on beauty clients. She also has been instructing this fast and flawless learning technique to cosmetology students in 36 schools. As a philosophy and on practical procedures, she states that " It's not just the technique, but I show the students how to do real business with the kit."

According to her, beauty experts who learn to properly work with Airmakeup can earn an additional $15,000 or more a year in extra revenue. Since its creation many beauty artists to the stars like Toni Acey have begun working religiously with the technique.
